Supplier label intake

One form per exact product and pack. Record the SKU and label reference in Kitchen under Supplier label evidence.

Product and evidence

Ingredient / product name

Supplier / brand / exact SKU and pack size

Lot / batch identifier

Printed date and date type

Received date / temperature if required

☐ Front and ingredient label ☐ Lot/date and storage panel ☐ Current supplier spec or confirmation

Evidence file name or link / supplier spec revision and date

Label review and handling

Allergens as written on the label / spec

Shared-line statement or supplier response

Sealed storage condition and date basis

Verbatim after-opening directions

Approved after-open use-by / temperature

Approved after-slice/prep use-by / temperature

Earliest discard rule / missing evidence and next action

☐ Pending ☐ Hold ☐ Approved for service

Person in charge / date

If a pack omits a limit, mark it unset for the person in charge. Keep this record private and confirm the exact SKU before copying facts to the kitchen matrix.

35-minute bench rehearsal

0–10 min. Verify the exact packs, labels and cold rail. Start only after the lead clears the ingredients.

10–18 min. Time one small prep batch. Record usable yield and demonstrate pack-to-batch traceability.

18–30 min. Run one of each sandwich on a stocked bench. Capture ticket-in, build-start, verified-ready and handoff.

30–35 min. Run one allergy hold and one handoff. Log failures and retest; this pass sets a baseline.

Evidence to keep. Actual build weights, stopwatch entries, a wrap photo, and reviewer decision. For any sales-channel test, keep the customer input and staff ticket side by side using the same test order ID.
